of the candidates, being on friendly terms with all county. The Chicago Tribune says: of them, and desiring to continue so. But in the Mr. Corress in Lake County - We learn that spirits. He was warmly urged to remain and management of the contest for sheriff means have been made use of which are made used to be a second to the made use of which are made used to be a second to the made use of the ma been made use of which are unfair, and which simple justice to our own candidate requires of us themselves to him. Among the number was our vices during the late eventful session of congress, uncompromising Whag of the old school; an upto expose

A handle is attempted to be made, among the democrats, by the candidates opposed to Mr. place. It is said he went into the convention. pledged himself to support their principles, and begged the nomination. Now, that there is not bers of the Liberty Convention, The facts in the case are simply these. When the question it was determined, after freely canvassing the says: subject, to be inexpedient to make nominations.

Mr. Mcnoberts says, that subject, to be inexpedient to make nominations, speech at Danville, Vermillion county, repullated The reasons that predominated appeared to be about these. Although a prominent member of the convention stated that he had conversed with the candidates for sheriff now in the field in reference to their willingness to aid in the arrest of fugitive slaves, and found them all on the same ground; yet, as Mr. Dow was found not only on the same ticket with and election ered for by, and electioneering for Mr. Skinner, but was actually support Mr. Skimer, it was held that the nominaonly strengthen the chances of Mr. Skinner's suc-Dows' election. And regarding the subject in this light, the convention thought they might as well go a step further, and throw their influence have been his personal predelictions. in a direction that would more nearly tend to caring the chances of the last, as indeed all sensible men must, as utterly hopeless, and a rote in his favor as equal to a vote for Mr. Dow.

Now the point we make is this. So far as pledges to the convention are concerned, if such were made at all, they were equally made by all the made at all, they were equally made by all the county. His position on banking and the rail-road met at all points, and my opinion is fully made, candidates; and touched only the one point, as to questions, were the same as expressed in his that the number of hogs will be very little, if the arrest of fugitive slaves. And the ground speeches here. Judging from the assumed by Mr. Goodell here is undoubtedly cor- and the enthusiasm manifested at the meeting. rest. The execution of the fugitive slave law is we should judge that Mr. Randall will receive the placed by congress in the hands of proper officers warm and cordial support of the entire democratappointed by the national government. In their it party of his county hands let it remain. We despise, and hope the democratic party of this county despise and abher, the man, who, like some of the whig candidates, will step out of his way, and simply for gain-for filthy fucre assist in arresting and sending the fugitive back into bondage. Let those whom the nation appoints to this dirty work do it-but let our cheriffe and coroners, for whom we have different duties, attend to their own bu-

As to accepting the nomination of the Liberty convention, for which fault is attempted to be found with Mr. Goodell, he has neither done so, nor declined the nomination. It was a simple recommendation, and he had no power, had he even been foolish enough to desire, to prevent their making it. Mr. G. is the regularly nominated de mocratic candidate, brought out by a regularly convened convention of the party, standing upon its platform, and pledged to the support of our principles. If, with these facts before them, any other party or class of men choose to support him. surely the democrate are the last that should objest. For our part, we regard it as a compliment, that as respectable a body as the liberty convention was, should find, where the question was con-fined to a simple choice between men, that our candidate was so much better a man than either

So an appeal was made thorough. to Mr. Claypool, who, being a sensible man, could see no chance of success, and having no ambition to be defeated, very accommodatingly waived his claims. Dr. Pangloss-or, we would say Paddockof Boreau, and Mr. Beebe, of Peru, are therefore the whig candidates for representatives in this district, according to the new arrangement.

There are thus four candidates on the track om the western end of the district, while Mr Hise is the only candidate who can be said to represent the eastern portion. Now we have no wish to stir up sectional facilings and animosities-for there is no occasion for any; but as the Peru Telegraph has made the locality of Mr. Hise, (who are busy and straining every nerve. Cook County Nominations. The Democratic Convention of Cook county met at Chicago on the 29th inst, and nominated the following ticket:

For Representatives-Thomas Dyer, Dr. W. B.

For Sheriff-Wm. H. Davis. For Coroner-John Rvan.

This ticket is made up indiscriminately of Pree ri, and Illinois, will make up for any deficiency offers and Cass, democrats, and will be heartily from last year by the scarcity of corn." Soilers and Cass democrats, and will be heartily supported by both wings of the Democratic party. Better men than are nominated could not have been picked out of Cook county. The people of Chicago have had an eye to the importance of the next session of our legislature, and have put forward their best men.

Look to Your Tickets Tickets are in circulation all over the county with all the names of the democratic candidates on them except the sheriff, where the name of Mr Dow is substituted for that of Mr. Goodell. This ticket is attempted to be palmed off as the "Regular Democratic Ticket." The game is a commot and a meau one. It can succeed with only very imporant voters, or such as have been culpably areless in ascertaining who the candidates are. No honest man would be concerned in such a small potato game of deception.

> HATNAU AT VIENNA -The government organi at Vienna in their intense mortification at the treatment experienced by Haynay, are endeavoring to brave the matter out, and to cover the man's infamy by stating that the recent attack on him will cause the highest favors to be shown to him by the Emperor, and that he will accordingly receive, what has leng been the object of his ambition, a marshal's baton. How any trans action between Haynau and his master can whiten the reputation or exalt the dignity of either is not explained. The general, it appears from the accounts of the English writers at Vienna fa vorable to him, professes now to be "more aston ished than indignant" at the treatment be receiv ed in England, while he also boasts of having in flicted with his stick severe damage upon his as sailants. That, notwithstanding his crimes, he was astonished at the outrage upon him, is quite probable; because, with the hard animalism peuliar to the Austrian military character, he seems quite incapable of understanding that he has committed any enormities, while at the same time, the culpable pleasantries with which he was re coived at the Peace Congress, with the general forbearance of the English population, were calculated to remove all idea of danger. With regard to the way in which he met the attack, all that can be said is that his own version of it scarcely agrees with that of any of the other witnesses. It may be hoped, however, that it is correct, since if it can be established that he met the first marks of scorn and annovance that were directed against him by an indiscriminate use of his stick, it would explain much of the more furious feeling with which he was subsequently pursued. Couples with these accounts, attempts are also being made to clear him of the odium connected with the flogging of Madame de Maderspach, but although the actual guilt of that step is thrown upon a subrdinate officer, no pretence is made to show that this party was ever punished or reproved either Haynau or the Emperor.
